Introduction:

You will use HTML to create a email subscription form for your website.

As part of your required code for your Project #1 - personal portfolio website, you will need to incorporate an HTML form. One potential use for an HTML form is for users to submit an email address for updates and news.

Using the video and other resources you have, build an HTML form that includes a text box for entering an email address, a submit button, and instructions for users to enter an email address. This is what the finished product should look like:

Enter your email address to receive updates:

Hint: I am not requiring you to have an actual form method or action, so you can use `method="#"` and `action="#"` in your code.

For your grade in lieu of tonight's in-class activity, send me your HTML code by email or Slack. This is due at 6:30pm next Wednesday 10/4.
